

A kindergarten year should be filled with math, reading, religion, science and social studies. Throughout the year we have two V.I.P. (Very Important Person) Days where the children are allowed to bring in someone with whom to spend the morning. On this day the child and their V.I.P. participate in a variety of activities within the classroom setting. We also celebrate the 100th Day of School. We have field trips throughout the year; our last field trip of the year is to the zoo. Parents are welcome to join us. We have show and tell where the child may bring in something from home to share with the class. We have snack time and a free time where the children are free to explore. We also have 8th grade buddies with whom we do projects, read, and play.

Our classroom is a large beautiful room where children can move around and are not confined to just sitting in their seats. We have one side where we usually do our work. The other side is where children have their hands-on learning, large and small motor, imagery play, and calendar time. We learn to work and play together and treat each other like friends.

I try to provide a safe, loving, caring atmosphere where children can grow and become independent learners. I try to teach by example by treating others how I would like to be treated. I tell the children that our classroom has a magical door, that when they pass through it we all become friends and we treat each other like friends.
